“ my brother and i spent alot of time together. he was at our house more than i think he was at his own. whenever i could, i went to his house to help clean. one thing i remember is that just about every time i went over there, there was every dish in the house smashed into the sink. so i would end up doing all those dishes, and in the meanwhile jamie cleaned the rest of the house, because he was going at about 100 mph, once he got going that is.,

“ My prayers go out to all family and friends , Terry was someone that i looked up to as a roll model in my early teens ,one of the older guys that was really cool , played a mean guitar , and even took the time and interest to show me a couple cords , i went to my first rock concert with him back in 1978-79 we saw the band YES you never forget your first rock concert ,and the friends you saw it with,, i no i never have , every time i hear the song by YES the memories of my first concert and Terry come to mind , i would tell him he looked like Steven Tyler and he called me elvie burn our inside joke , unfortunately we lost touch later in life , but would run into each other and catch up every now and again it was like we had never lost a beat ,i was shocked and deeply deeply sadden to hear of his passing, , Terry was one those glass is half full people ,easy to talk to and could make you feel better about any tough situation , i feel i am a better person to have known and and looked up to him as a role model , Terry you will not be forgotten you are a big part of my best early life memories , rest in peace my friend , sincerely,
